

Travel Phobic Dog Breeds

While most of the dogs love traveling and hop into the car happily, there are a few dogs that don't. They tend to get aggressive and anxious when forced into traveling.

Here are a few breeds that do not enjoy traveling

Maltese

They get extremely stressed when it comes to traveling either by air or road. Even as a breed, they suffer from anxiety issues when exposed to crowds.

Toy Poodles

Poodles by itself feel claustrophobic when left in confined spaces for long time. So a car is out of the question.

Pitbull

Pitbulls tend to become extremely aggressive while traveling. This causes stress to both the dog and the parent.

Rottweiler

They are generally introverts and do not gel well with strangers. So, if you are camping in a place that will attract a lot of tourists, you might have to think twice before taking them along.

Bulldogs

Bulldogs like going on long walks. Therefore if you are taking them on a car trip, you need to take adequate breaks or they might end up becoming cranky.

Chihuahua

While they are susceptible to hot weather by nature, they also get highly anxious when they get in the car or face stressful situations.

Yorkshire Terrier

These little companions are sensitive to motion sickness. They also get anxious to loud noises.
